

Tue April 29, 2008

Former WellPoint Senior Executive Appointed MDdatacor Executive Chairman

John S. Watts, Jr. to Lead Board of MDdatacor, Inc., a Leading Healthcare Technology Company

Atlanta, GA, April 29, 2008 – MDdatacor, Inc., a leader in healthcare quality management solutions for health plans and providers, today announced it has appointed John S. Watts Jr., former president and CEO of WellPoint Inc.'s Commercial and Consumer Business, as executive chairman of its Board of Directors.

Watts has more than 25 years of experience in building, growing and leading large health plan organizations. He spent 12 years at WellPoint, the nation's largest insurer with approximately 35 million members, where he held numerous executive positions, including chief executive and president of Blue Cross Blue Shield of Georgia and president and CEO of National Accounts. In his most recent position as president and CEO of WellPoint's Commercial and Consumer Business, Watts directed a $50 billion division that encompassed 14 Blue Cross Blue Shield plans.

Watts' election as executive chairman comes at a time of rapid growth for MDdatacor, which recently expanded both its employee base and corporate headquarters in Atlanta, Georgia. This growth is attributed to signing several large health plan clients and forging new strategic partnerships.

"John understands the value of MDdatacor's core competency: collecting the most comprehensive patient clinical data set in health care and engaging physicians by presenting them with actionable data to help improve patient outcomes," said Timothy G. Roche, co-founder, president and chief executive officer of MDdatacor. "I am confident that John's extensive experience with health plans and large employers will help us greatly expand our customer base, and we look forward to his leadership in guiding the company through its next phase of growth."

"The ability to collect and use clinical data to improve healthcare quality is unique to MDdatacor. My goal in joining the board is to help the company maximize the value of this asset for all constituents in the healthcare system," said Watts.

For more information, visit:

www.mddatacor.com or call (866) 460-5681. Info@mddatacor.com

About MDdatacor, inc.

Established in 2001 and headquartered in Atlanta, Georgia, MDdatacor provides innovative healthcare information technology solutions that empower payers and providers to deliver the highest quality healthcare possible. MDdatacor technology creates a HIPAA-compliant database by combining medical claims and clinical data from electronic medical record, practice management, registry, and lab systems from any vendor. This vendor-neutral interoperability allows the collection and sharing of information from existing – and often disparate – information systems. Further, the company's unique ability to extract data from unstructured sources such as transcription and free-form text results in access to the most complete and accurate patient data available.

The MDdatacor solution is used to support quality improvement, health information exchange and Patient-Centered Medical Home initiatives.

MDdatacor currently serves more than 7,000 physicians representing over seven million patients. For more information, visit <http://www.mddatacor.com> or call (866) 460-5681.